It rises in Elbow Lake, in Minnesota, and flows southerly a distance of fifty miles or more, where it is met by the waters of big Stone Lake, and thence its course is northerly to the British boundary line, crossing which, it empties into Lake Winnipeg, which connects with Hudson's Bay by Nelson River—It is a muggy and sluggish stream, but is navigable for boats of three feet draft for four months in the year to the extent of perhaps four It is a muggy and slugglish stream, but is navigable for boats of three feet draft for four months in the year to the extent of perhaps four hundred miles before it reaches the British territory. Its tributaries are numerous and copious, abounding with game, and skirted with beautiful foliage and fine groves of timber. The valley is rich throughout almost its whole extent. Notwithstanding its high latitude, the climate, in its more northerly parts even, is salubrious. The settlements at present are chiefly within the British dominions, but, within a few years, they have been rapidly extending southerly, within the limits of Minnesota and what is now Dacotah.

what is now Dacotah.

The whole population of the valley is estimated at twenty-five thousand—mostly half-breeds, although there are many English, Scotch and French farmers of the first class. The principal British settlement is about seventy miles north of Pembina (the American settlement on the line), and lies on both sides of the river, with a population of 10,000. The settlement was founded by the Hudson's Bay Company, and now numbers many persons of cultivation and wealth. The fur traffic is the principal business. Boffaloes still feed on the western bank of the river, and great numbers are taken by professional hunters, in the summer and autumn, and in the winter the smaller furs are procured. It has been estimated that upwards of $200,000 worth of furs have been annually taken from our side of the line, and sold to the Hudson's Bay Company. The British subjects, however, are turning their attention south, and Minnesota has derived considerable advantage from their trade. They raise cattle, horses and sheep; and has year a thousand Red River carts came down from Selkirk, loaded with produce of the country, and with money and furs to purchase supplies from our traders. The extensive and fertile valley of the Red River of the North will present strong inducements for immigration, and the time is not far distant, probably, when these carts will give way to the railroad cars.

The Big Sloux River is a tributary of the Missouri, into which it empties after a southely course of about two hundred miles through a beautiful and fertile country. The Dacotah is also a tributary of the Missouri. It takes its rise on the plateau of the Missouri. It takes its rise on the plateau of the Missouri, below 43 degrees. It is navigable with hunting cances for a distance of nearly six hundred miles. Its shores are tolerably wells wooded at intervals. It occasionally widens into lakes, at which points many eligible situations for farms are found. M. Nicollet says of the immense prairie watered by the Dacotah, that "it has been deemed by all the travelers to those distant regions as perhaps the most beautiful within the territory of the United States."

In the Wisconsin Legislature the other day, Mr. Keogh, Democrat, introduced the following preamble and resolution, which were referred to the committee on "Swamps and Overflowed Lands:"

Could anything be more like a the machinery. Could anything be more like a brain turned into brass? The inventor of this wonderful affair, Timothy Alden, was a practical printer; and to it be devoted twenty years, dying, when he had at at last perfected it—his brain and nerves giving way to the disease of over-concentration of thought and will. How many men are victims, in these "fast days," to this kind of overtask-ing! Yet Alden lived enough of a life, if measured by benefit to his race. A New Type Setter-Willia Describes a Won- Lateresting Reminiscence of Robert Fulton-derful Machine. A writer in a Buffalo (N. Y.) paper relates the following:

Some twenty years since, more or less, I formed the acquaintance, on a steamboat outhe Hudson river, of a gentleman who on that occasion related to me some incidents of the first voyage of Fulton to Albany, in his steamboat, the Clermont, which I had never met with else-dollars. It would "clear itself," of course, by the saving of labor, to say nothing of the acceleration of work to which speed is so necessary—in a very short time. Without going into a particular description of the machinery, I may say, as one who has been a well taught type-setter himself, that it seemed to me as the locomotive seems to the stage-driver, or as the steamboat to the paddler of the cance—an impossible desideratum brought miraculously to pass.

Perhaps the most curiously ingenious part of Perhaps the most curiously ingenious part of ward I have ever received for all my exertions in adapting steam to navigation. I would glad-ly commemorate the event over a bottle of wine with you, but I really am too poor, even for that, ust now; yet I trust we may meet again when this will not be so " The voyage to New York was successful, as all know, and terminated without accident.

A compound remedy, designed to be the most effectual Alterative that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still greater alterative power as to afford an effective antidote for the diseases Sarsapavilla is reputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strumous complaints, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our afflicted fellow-citizens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found of the following complaints:

Cleanse out the vitiated blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, cruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it is ob-structed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt, people enjoy better health, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. Keep the blood healthy, and all is well; but with this pabulum of life disordered, there can be no lasting health. Sooner or later something must go wrong, and the great machinery of life is disordered or overthrown.

During late years the public have been mis led by large bottles, pretending to give a quast-of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been fraucs upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever. Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which restsupon it. And we think we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irresistible to the characteristic of the characte by the ordinary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete eradication from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to directions on
